REPRESENTATIVE CASSIDY, of Nevada, is bound to have himself talked about. He has introduced in the House a bill for the punishment of polygamists.

AMERICA HAS another crew in the Arctic region, for whose safety there begins to be felt some anxiety. Lieutenant Greeley and twenty-two men are presumed to be located in a double-walled house at Lady Franklin Bay, whither he was sent eight months ago to make observations in accordance with an agreement among some of the leading nations. His station is the uppermost in the Arctic region. The arrangement was that he was to be visited and revictualled every summer, and a supply ship endeavored to reach him last season, but failed and had to return. Only about one year in seven can vessels go to Lady Franklin Bay on account of the ice. Preparations are being made to use sledges next summer in case the sea is frozen. Fortunately for Greeley he is near a bed of coal, and has sufficient provisions to last, with economy, until next autumn. It looks as if there would have to be an international law making it a penal offense to send anybody into the polar region.

THE GRATIFYING news comes from Washington that the subcommittee of the House committee on elections, to whom was referred the petition of Mr. Caine for admission to the Forty-seventh Congress, as Delegate from Utah, reports in favor of the petitioner. This is as it should be. Utah was deprived of representation in Congress through no fault of her voters. They had no warning or intimation that the gentleman elected to the Forty-seventh Congress would not be permitted to serve the term, as he had sat in four Congresses, and was as eligible to the last as the first. Congress having created new qualifications, or rather, made new disqualifications, the Territory ought not to be made to suffer in consequence thereof. The report in favor of Mr. Caine will doubtless soon be followed by his admission. We may accept the committee's action as an indication that the anti-Utah sentiment is not as strong in Washington this winter as it was last.

THE NEWSPAPERS are teeming with accounts of the prevarications and other stories of Major Tom Ochiltree, the well-known Texan, who was recently elected to Congress as a republican in a democratic district. Ochiltree has a national reputation as a liar, and it is admitted, if not by him, at least by his friends, that he can tell more and bigger lies than anybody except a republican editor in campaign time. He is also a good deal of a wit, as the following will illustrate. The story has never been in type, but it is nevertheless true, and ought to go the rounds at this time. Some years ago Major Ochiltree was presented to Mrs. George Alfred Townsend, in New York, and the lady, in a tone of astonishment remarked: "Is this really the Major Ochiltree, who, I understand, is the biggest liar in America?" "Yes, madam," replied the gallant Major, "but there are three of us. I'm only one of the three." "And who are the other two?" inquired Mrs. Townsend. "Your husband," said Ochiltree, and the conversation was at an end.

NOW LISTEN for a loud and prolonged howl, Senator Saunders, by request, has introduced a bill for the admission of Utah into the Union. This is only the annual thing, a proceeding that has occurred every year since '46, but the howl will have to ascend just as if it were a new thing, and there was liability of the immediate erection of the territory into a state. There is nobody so verdant or confiding as to believe Utah will be admitted this winter, and very few who care much whether she gets in or stays out. There are plenty, however, who are willing to wager that when the Territory does go into the Union it will be because the Union is at least as anxious to admit her as she is to be admitted.

THE ATTEMPT to enforce the new Sunday law in New York, has called from William E. Dody, the millionaire Christian, a letter which the gentleman should never have written. The letter is published in the Sun, which describes it in its usual terse and telling way, as "a specimen of cant, pure and simple, which cannot be excelled by any modern literary production which has ever fallen under our notice. The tenor of the letter is that Mr. Dody owned stock in railroads which did not run trains on Sunday, and that as soon as they changed this policy he sold out at a profit and they went into bankruptcy. The whole letter is a mixture of worldly-mindedness, and the writer cannot help showing that behind the mask which he has put on he is shrewd and calculating and would exact the last penny from an unfortunate debtor. Probably one of his most outrageous assertions is that the Norwalk disaster on the New York and New Haven railroad would not have happened if the train had been in charge of a "first-class Christian engineer." Mr. Dodge's idea of the Deity seems to be that of an implacable monster, who, in order to punish a railroad, allows thirty lives to be sacrificed—lives, too, of people who were probably better and more consistent Christians than a whole generation of Dodges. When will men begin to understand that we are not living under the Mosaic economy; that the eternal reign of law will continue in spite of the ignorance manifested by such men as Mr. Dodge, and that utterances like these which we have quoted are neither logical nor in accordance with the teachings of Him who rebuked the narrow-mindedness of the Pharisees in these words: "Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem?"
